In this 1921 book of true life hunting adventures the author narrates a lifetime of hunting in Asia and Africa during which time he successfully bags numerous trophies including elephant, tiger, lion, rhino, bear, and many many more. From inside the book: I do not pretend to have ever been a good shikari. I began big-game shooting too late in life to become an expert in the business; and I am not specially observant, and was handicapped to some extent by deafness. In forest hunting, good hearing is almost as important as good sight. I was, however, a fairly good rifle shot, especially at stationary objects, and was a good walker and had a considerable amount of endurance and pretty good nerves. My native hunters, whether they were Indians, Africans, or Chinese, have usually worked well for me; and I was fully conscious of my own limitations, and was not too proud to obtain help from others to make good my own deficiencies. With these qualifications, I managed to have some very good sport, to secure some fine trophies, and to come unscathed through some fairly exciting adventures.
