Customer Reviews

The quality of the cards are quite good; smooth plastic coated cards. The cards are in a formed plastic tray and the cardboard sleeve acts as the lid, so the cards can get loose. The airplane cards have a good variety of planes from allies and axis. Spades are US planes; Diamonds are German; Hearts are British; Clubs are 9 Japanese planes and 4 Italian planes. The plane silhouettes are front, top, and side views from a ground observer. The mix of Navel cards are a disappointment. They're mostly US and allied ships: 29 US, 10 USSR, 9 British, 1 Canadian, 1 French, 3 Netherlands, 1 Japanese ships. The Navel cards show only a side silhouette from a ground or ship observer.

These are great. I have a set of the airplane cards given to me years ago, this set with naval vessels too is great. I thought this was just a two-pack but it turns out to be a caddy with space for two decks. It is bulky to carry if you need just one deck at a time.

As a WWII buff, my husband has seen many shows and movies that have these playing cards and has been wanting some for a long time. They are accurate reproductions of the cards used to teach the popular to identify planes and ships by their shape. These are a great addition to any WWII enthusiasts collection. And you can play cards if the electricity goes out!

Was very pleased with the spotter cards. They came in perfect condition. The cards were interesting to look at and I never realized how many ships and planes there were during WWII.

I got these as a gift for my boyfriend's grandfather who is a Navy veteran and loves planes and ships. He loved them! I figured it would be cool for him to look through and test his knowledge and he whipping these out to show people and occasionally just looks through them. And he's an active up and about guy. A great stocking stuffer type gift!

I ordered these for my fiancee's grandfather and he loved them. Great quality and shipped quickly. I recommend this product for anyone who is a military buff and likes playing cards.

cards are smaller than normal cards, and they don't come with a card case. They are in the box like a set of uno cards.

I bought these for a friend who is a military history buff (and whose father served in WWII) he really loved them. The cards were great quality and I know they will be treasured for a long time.
